Celebrating 40 Years of Chesapeake Bay Restoration

Over the past 40 years, the Chesapeake Bay Program has guided the restoration and conservation of the nation's largest estuary. What started as a partnership between Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Washington, D.C., the Chesapeake Bay Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency has grown to include all of the states whose rivers drain into the Bay, as well as a number of other nonprofit, university, and state and federal partners.

Watch a chronicle of the partnership's restoration efforts within the Chesapeake Bay watershed.
