

*Cindy Shreve
Agriculture Outreach Specialist
Regulatory and Environmental Affairs Division
West Virginia Department of Agriculture*

Cindy Shreve received a Bachelor of Science from West Virginia University in 2004. Following graduation, she worked for a poultry integrator as a service technician and explored a career as an insurance agent before beginning to work for the West Virginia Department of Agriculture in 2015.

During the three years that Cindy has been at the Department of Agriculture, her responsibilities have included water quality monitoring, agricultural BMP verification, agriculture and conservation outreach in both schools and public educational meetings and conducting FSMA trainings. She is also currently working towards becoming a certified Nutrient Management Planner.

Cindy has a background in beef and commercial poultry production and is active in the West Virginia Poultry Association. Currently residing in Western Maryland, Cindy, her husband and their 2 children are in the process of moving back to her family's farm in New Creek, WV.
